WILSON WOULD REPEAL ALL PROTECTIVE TARIFF LAWS.

The following is taken from an address delivered by Professor Woodrow Wilson before the tariff board in 1882, showing his view then on the question of the tariff and the distinct announcement of his position as a free trader, opposed to all tariffs except merely for the purpose of raising revenue:

"But the danger of imposing protective duties is that when the policy is once embarked upon it cannot be easily receded from. Protection is nothing more than a bounty, and when we offer bounties to manufacturers they will enter into industries and build up interests and when at a later day we seek to overthrow this protective tariff we must hurt somebody and of course there is objection. They will say, 'Thousands of men will be thrown out of employment and hundreds of people will lose their capital.' This seems very plausible; but I maintain that manufacturers are made better manufacturers wherever they are thrown upon their own resources and left to the natural competition of trade."

"Protection also hinders commerce immensely. The English people do not send as many goods to this country as they would if the duties were not so much and in that way there is a restriction of commerce and we are building up manufacturers here at the expense of commerce. We are holding ourselves aloof from foreign countries in effect and saying, 'We are sufficient to ourselves; we wish to trade, not with England, but with each other.' I maintain that it is not only a pernicious system, but a corrupt system."

"By Commissioner Garland: 'Q. Are you advocating the repeal of all tariff laws?'

"A. Of all protective tariff laws; of establishing a tariff for revenue merely. It seems to me very absurd to maintain that we shall have free trade between different portions of this country and at the same time shut ourselves out from free communication with other producing countries of the world. If it is necessary to impose restrictive duties on goods brought from abroad it would seem to me as a matter of logic, necessary to impose similar restrictions on goods taken from one state of this Union to another. That follows as a necessary consequence; there is no escape from it."

PITCHER WEILMAN

Maysville Recruit Does Fancy Work For St. Louis Browns

What Detroit Fans Say of the Tall Wonder

Detroit, Mich., Dispatch to St. Louis Post-Dispatch September 9th.

He measures only 6 feet 5 1/2 inches in his stocking feet, but he looked to be 9 feet tall to the Tigers until Ty Cobb cut him down in the seventh inning of that final farewell for the Browns on Navin Field yesterday. His name is Weisman and he is the St. Louis pitcher recruit from Maysville in the Blue Grass League.

Never since the days of Cy Falkenberg was there such a correct imitation of the importance of altitude given on the local baseball amusement company's property as that furnished by Weisman yesterday.

This Weisman is some pitcher. He had the Tigers' number and held them to few enough hits—seven for the day. Had he been facing a team with anything but Ty Cobb to break up the game there is little doubt but that he would have won.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Just as an example of the use to which the man from Maysville put his immense stature, take that fourth inning. The Tigers would have stilled the game sure as shooting in this round if it had not been for the ability of the pitcher to shove one hand up into the clouds and pull down the tallest of the skyscrapers in that inning. O'Mara, the Tiger youngster from St. Louis, drove a grounder to Weisman and did with little agony. Then Corridon alighted another at the burler. With ninety-nine pitchers in a hundred it would have been a hit. With Warhop or Eddie Cicotte in the box the pitcher would have needed a field glass to get a glimpse of the ball. But Weisman extended himself over nine feet in the air straight above mother earth and pulled down the high boulder easily.

It took Cobb and all his quickness in taking advantage of the breaks that came his way to defeat Weisman finally. Ty had been unable to get a hit up to the seventh inning. He led off then. He swung at one ball, a curve that just missed the end of his bat. He was desperate. His feeling showed up his face. He thought to try the bunt game. But the ball dropped below his bat and Ty cursed. His final whack clipped the pellet toward Brown in left. That man tried to rob Ty of a hit by a great running catch. The only objection to the play was that he did not reach the ball and it bounded to the fence, while Cobb raced to the third bag, getting that base on a legitimate single.

A pass ball let loose by Weisman allowed him to score the winning run. Score, 2 to 1.

Ark Steel Tube Bed

SQUARE TUBING

Do you see how the square cross-rod at top of head and foot square this bed? Imagine this design with round tubing in those positions. Would not the result be "ordinary" and monotonous?

It is just such details of clever and artistic designing that have made our steel beds so popular. And the very large corner posts with brass caps all combine to make this an unusually artistic bed.

Moreover this bed is as good as it looks. Because it is made of drawn steel tubing, very light in weight—extremely strong.

A child can move this bed with the greatest ease. Come in and see this bed. Then you will realize how good it is.
